

NODAMA 1972

Hastily-called meetings during morning homeroom periods kept NHS members in touch. Crowded schedules precipitated the members' late November decision that NHS would continue only as an honorary club with no specific activities outlined. Despite the termination of daily tutoring and the discontinuation of Student-Teacher Day, NHS members continued to display scholarship, leadership, character, and service through the many and varied activities in which each girl was involved. In November, eight girls, whose names were among the many submitted, took part in the challenging contest appropriately renamed as the Fifth Annual Brain "Brawl".

Hospital work calls parameds

Jostling 12 girls into one Corvair became routine as Health Careers Club travelled to Palms of Pasadena and All Children's Hospital during Tuesday meetings. With new advisor Mrs. Wowak, members began the school year by attending a county rally in Dunedin. Medical specialists acquainted students with opportunities in health-related fields, and several members discovered the category of their feet from a podiatrist. Focusing on pediatrics with the assistance of auxiliary sponsor Mrs. Adela Vidal, Health Careers took part in the volunteer program at All Children's. Highlighting the February district convention in Tampa was the simulation of an accident by the emergency rescue squad. Soon afterwards meetings turned to planning sessions as the Notre Dame club hosted the April state convention at the Hilton. Statewide guest speakers informed students on the expanding world of medicine.

Speakers envision careers

Savoring lemon, cherry, grape, and orange lollipops on Lollipop Day and selling gold and black Baron Beanies for Homecoming enhanced the Future Secretaries of America's treasury. Gains paid for speakers and refreshments for joint monthly FSA meetings with members from Dixie Hollins High School and St. Petersburg Junior College. With new advisor Sister Malia, the club iceskated at the Bayfront in October. Attending Thursday night meetings of the National Secretaries' Association provided insight into problems of secretarial work, as did field trips to business offices. Eligible juniors and seniors taking at least two business courses met Mondays during activity period to arrange projects. A mailing job after school at Colt & Dumont gave members first-hand secretarial experiences and slight pecuniary increase.

A treasury in the red, new advisor, switch of publishers, change in workrooms and untrained staffers greeted the editors of The Spirit at the beginning of the school year. During Sunday meetings held at Mrs. Linda Duffy's apartment, editors argued over new editorial policies and money raising projects. Mr. Tom Duffy, professional journalist, helped the staff choose a printer, gave journalism workshops and suggested improvements. After a subscription drive, Coffee House, and car wash, staffers decided to increase the number of editions over previous years. Sporting a more liberalized attitude, staffers strove to report both sides of such controversial issues as forced busing, poverty, and voting. Armed with camera and note pad, photographers and writers visited city hall, the free clinic, and the ghetto in order to present the student body with a well-rounded view of the community. In March, the editors trudged to New York City where the paper was judged at Columbia University and awarded honors.

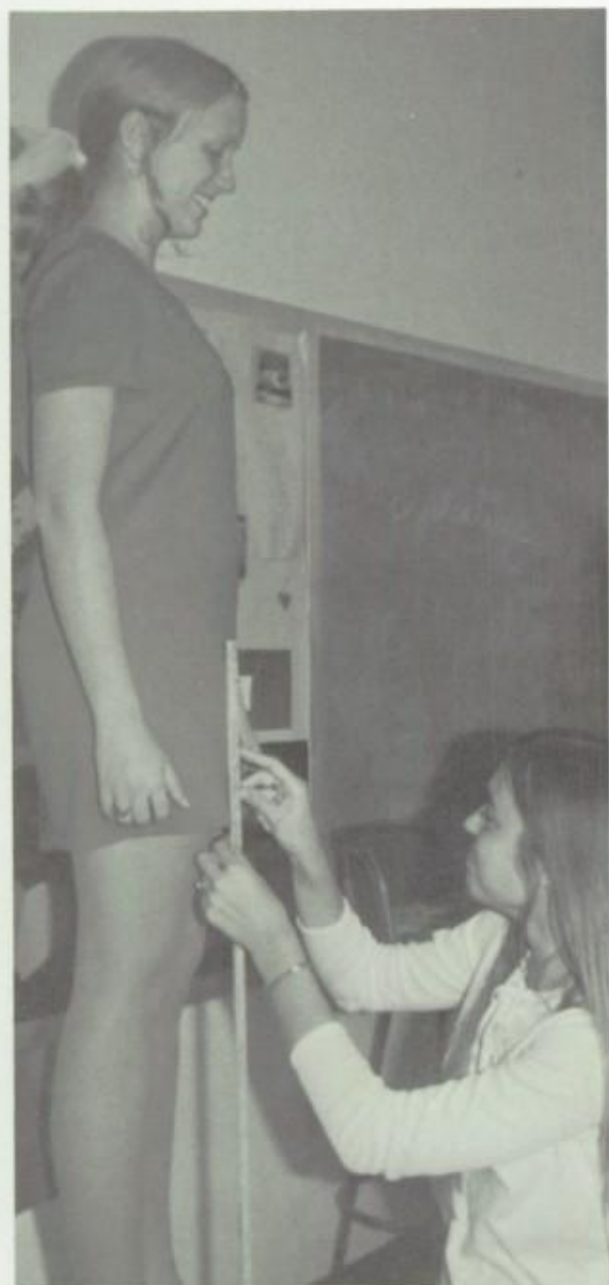

Exchangettes sponsor MOD Walk-a-Thon

New red uniforms brightened NDA as Exchangettes traveled through the halls each Thursday. Club Advisor Miss Westervelt, uniformed herself, assisted in conducting the activity period meetings. Telethons, candy apple sales, and trips to Pinellas Association for Retarded Children filled the club's agenda. Members collected avidly for various charities. In February, fellow students were spurred on to contribute to March of Dimes. Cans were rapidly filled with pennies, nickels, and quarters left over from lunch allowances. UNICEF buttons covered blouses and skirts as Exchangettes collected for underprivileged children of the world. Bandaged and blistered feet could be seen limping to class after the March of Dimes twenty mile pledge walk on March 4. Later in March members traveled with mascot Poindexter and their famous turtle scrapbook to claim awards at the district convention. Key club boys attended girls' meetings and collaborated with club members in planning worthwhile activities and fund raising projects. The year was an unsurmountable one for all Exchangettes.

Robert Frost. What more can be said? New Glee Clubbers learned quickly of Sister Mary Louise's great love for Frostiana, a series of Robert Frost poems arranged by Randall Thomas. Before the start of each Frostiana piece, members were treated to one of Sister's enthusiastic interpretations of the poem to be sung. With approximately 100 members and one secretary, roll taking was practically an impossibility without the aid of a new system of assigned seats. As membership raised drastically, the AV room seemed to become progressively smaller and patience considerably shorter. To alleviate the situation, the Glee Club was split into two groups with practices on Wednesday and Tuesday. The two new groups performed together and separately at concerts which cut down on the number of songs to be memorized, one of the greatest traumas of being a new member. A large treasury, resulting from a successful Christmas concert, purchased a piano that was tuned to concert pitch. Notables made their television debut when they sang for shut-in Masses telecast on Channel 8

Traveling for statewide tournaments enabled National Forensic League members to compete against Florida's toughest NFL speakers. During activity periods, club members demonstrated their talents to students in such categories as dramatic interpretation and extemporaneous speaking.

Speakers guided girls in form and delivery for club sponsored intramurals. On adventures to USF and Tallahassee, debaters carried vast files of research material employed in presenting views on various controversial topics. During trips to nearby meets, girls encountered unforgettable personalities as Adolph and Uncle Ralphie. Weekly PA pleas of "If anyone could drive the paper truck please report to room 201" reminded students of the ten dollar prize awarded to the class with the most paper. On Tuesday afternoons speakers capitalized on the aid of Mary Jane Matheney.

Knowledge gained in competition, research, and delivery aided girls in developing into effective speakers and influenced citizens.

Political assembly climaxes patriotic week

Kicking off the year with new jerseys, Civinettes devoted energy to Unicef. Students deposited Kool-Aid labels in decorated Treat of Life bags, and Unicef received money for labels from manufacturers. "Trick or treat for Unicef" echoed Halloween night as Civinettes canvassed neighborhoods collecting $45. Selling five cent black and gold spirit links to wrap around Baron goal posts Homecoming night earned $75. Stringing plastic beer holders across Ramada Inn, Civinettes aided in decorating for the Semi. Christmastime found Civinettes gluing glitter on stockings and purchasing toys and a tree for a needy family. January's meetings witnessed planning of February's Patriotic Week. An assembly climaxed Patriotic Week with Dr. Earl Kohler speaking on presidential politics. Dressing up as little old ladies from Pasadena, members recruited car wash customers to net $63. Allowing Mrs. Wells to devote more time to counselling, Miss Bobbie Brogan, new at NDA second semester, spurred club members as Civinette advisor.

As NODAMA staffers "eagerly" anticipated a full year of activities colored by subscription drives, interviews, and Sunday meetings, members produced the 1972 NODAMA. In early October, Sister Anne Maura and three editors journeyed to New York for the CSPA workshop. "Remember the Beautiful Things" was dubbed the annual subscription drive theme which was initiated by a first-ever slide show. While Sister and editors stressed quality, staffers planned original copy and layouts to the sound of Carole King. Staffers' constant pleas for food became club tradition while members worked together incredibly well. A staff of 16 became accustomed to the problems of NODAMA. Copy writers calmed themselves as copy was lost, then found, then lost again, while those working on layouts sighed as no pictures appeared in sight. "God bless Romo," the new unorganized publications room, and Burt Reynolds kept club members in good spirits during dreadful deadline days. As the school year terminated evidence of their efforts finally arrived.

Staff reduction necessitates overtime

Christmas boutique offers holiday gifts, nets profit

Fun-film flowers, burlap banners, and mobiles adorned the Home Ec lab in mid-December at the Christmas Boutique sponsored by the Art Club.

New adviser Miss Rusin brought novel ideas of articles to make.

Early in October, members began work on zodiac paper weights, colorful ponchos, and jewelry boxes.

Money gained from the sale of handiwork was used to buy new art supplies. Table decorations for the Spirit Coffee House were also provided by the Art Club.

Dues of $1.00 were collected from each member at the beginning of the year to boost the treasury.

The March third Art Club Mass told students to color their world God.

Pine saplings freshen air

Club advisor Mrs. Bernadette Marcin provided her Volkswagen camper to members of the Science Club as they sought out a wilderness region to pitch tents and beachcomb the area. Bike hikes to Abercombie Park and field trip excursions to Marine Research Laboratories proved interesting and educational to young scientists. Unearthing fresh ground to house 50 pine saplings enabled members to aid the ecology movement. Launch pad readiness empowered girls to blast off model rockets into their own atmospheric surroundings. Annual used book sale profits bought valuable equipment for use in science labs. New dimensions were added for erosion tests. Those who were willing and "had the stomach" dissected pig embryos with a discussion following.

"Project from the Diaphragm!" and "You have to spend money to make money!" were typical expressions heard by members of Drama Club after long hours of practice for plays. Members exhibited their full capacity for imagination with Stanislavski type acting during first play tryouts. John Meyer hosted club members at annual cast party as Charlie Babb made inquiries to "Santa Claus" (Sean Higgins) about future Christmas presents. Play directors Mrs. Maureen O'Donnell and Mr. Dennis McCarthy received appreciative gifts of flowers and Cold Duck wine, for a "job well done!" Audience, dazzled at outcome of play, called for backstage crew to "come forward" during curtain call.

Drama Club members showed that they were concerned with the future of others in the community when they donated money earned at performances to Camp Unitas, a summer camp for underprivileged children.

"Who's got the supply store key?" and "Student councilers, please check your mail boxes . . ." became well-worn phrases as Student Council settled into new quarters in B-wing. Following a model workshop, councilers helped organize orientation, and sponsored opening week assembly, "It's Howdy-Doody Time." September 3rd heralded the first dance where students moved to the music of EHG.

To alleviate lunchtime crowding, council purchased ten new benches. A Sunday "paint-in" transformed them to a sparkling green. Two new trash cans eliminated a long dash across the field. To share methods, Bogie and NDA officers attended meetings of the other council. In November a "silhouette booth" at the Holly Fair Bazaar provided extra money. Christmas brought the Student Council-Faculty Dinner at Sweden House, and bright red stockings for a needy family. The '72 Council broke with tradition by abolishing the big and little sister system and by chartering ICC as a separate organization. The new dance code reminded students, "no scarf blouses, cutoffs, or birthday suits allowed." SC created the office of corresponding secretary.

Wearing zonked hair, bobby socks, and Good Will pleated mid-calf skirts, cheerleaders mimicked cheers of the 1930's to the tune of "give me a B, give me a B, give me a B . . . B . . . B" at the Homecoming pep rally. After being selected for the first time by a joint vote of Barry and Notre Dame students, cheerleaders began training for fall games early in summer at camp. Hot and sweaty after exercises beginning at 6:00 a.m., cheerleaders wore repellent to guard against the camp gnats, only to find the lotion attracted bees. The camp found a patriotic hangout as cheerleaders gathered for announcements, exercises, and mail call under the flagpole. With new pom-poms and uniforms, cheerleaders romped, jumped, yelled, and kicked. Despite a few embarrassing moments of falling while somersaulting and cheering when the other team had scored, the cheerleaders were able to gather their joint nerve and cheer the last basketball game of the year.

Sports achievements evidenced at May banquet

"On your mark, get set, go!" rang through the air as annual Field Day sponsored by the Girl's Athletic Association commenced. A small fee enabled students to participate in Chinese torture, tug of war, and the apache race. Students enjoyed World's Finest Chocolate during GAA's sale to raise money for the NDA swim team. "Color is only pigment of your imagination" brightened the Eucharistic celebration in the GAA sponsored Mass. Miss Linda Ford's expert coaching kept volleyball and softball teams in top condition. Intra—and extramurals gave volleyball players constant practice. The swim team consulted with Mrs. Joan Wettlaufer as they swam in conditions ranging from pleasantly refreshing to electrifyingly icy. Cheerleaders lead spectators in shouts of encouragement to Barons through football and basketball seasons. End of the year brought recognition for GAA's sports achievements at the Sport's Awards Banquet held in May.

Small team merits big awards

Calls of "love-fifteen," "duce," and "thirty all" could be heard at Bartlett Park Recreation Center as the newly organized NDA tennis team, independent of GAA, attended home games under the coaching of Miss Alice Fernandez. Tuesday and Thursday found tennis team members at practice sessions with instructors Paul Reilly and Mike Green demonstrating effective techniques in serving, aceing and returning lobs. Weekly tennis matches and a district high school tournament comprised activities.

Anne,
 This year has been super having you in homeroom and Algebra (II).
 We ~~are~~ have had a really great year and never forget our wonderful homeroom teacher.
 Stay as sweet as you are. I'm glad I have you as a friend and good luck in whatever you attempt to do in the future.
 peace always,
 Jeanie

Personalities shape policies

Moving toward semi-definite confirmation, sale of NDA and merger with Barry fed '72 rumors. Less spectacularly, Administration painstakingly labored for massive curriculum and policy changes. In the blurred collage of announcements, appointments, and classes, Sister Eileen, principal, maintained order. "Girls, let me say just one more thing" pleaded Sister Marie Suzanne, vice-principal, as she offered ideas at SC meetings. Amid a blaring PA, Miss Mary Seifert, secretary, supervised a corps of office assistants and set office affairs in order. Dubbed Business Manager, Mrs. Ida Pearson kept financial files and always had a friendly "thank-you" to students paying bills. Mrs. Bernadette Marcin, dean of students, queried a concerned "How do you feel today?" to students returning from illness. Father Flood, president, found time to assist with Friday Mass. The School Board, in its second year of operation, gathered monthly to discuss topics such as NDA finances and school philosophy. New Advisory and Academic Committees implemented policies.

Departments add zest

Bright smiles—and a ready ear—greeted sometimes perturbed students who dropped into guidance office for advice and counseling. "Time is non-existent for me" seemed to be the motto not only of Miss Eileen Cleator but of all guidance personnel as the steady input to appointment envelopes became 8 to 3:30 days of interviews. Concern came across: in Mrs. Marie Johnson's warm personal interest in each student, Mrs. Virginia Knight's relaxed Southern drawl, Mrs. Norman Dusseault's optimistic pursuit of the right job opening, Miss Cleator's precise efficiency and boundless enthusiasm in finding solutions to student difficulties. Up the stairs and across the breezeway, Librarian Sister Rita Marie lent quiet efficiency and a sense of humor to the card-typing, plastic-covering, shelf-straightening details which provided answers to a student's "I need help with . . ."

Services can be special

The work of the Underground School Staff was evidenced as students became aware of well-swept corridors and machines filled to the brim with Busy Baker Brownies. Supervised by Woody Jacobs, maintenance men James McKinney and Frank Roth strenuously battled slogans chalked on breezeway. "Remove your shoes" and "Don't forget the waxpaper over your pillow" admonished volunteer mothers provided by the Women's Auxiliary. Sickly patients, briefly encountered by mothers, proved need for school nurse Mrs. Bernard. Mrs. Mary Isabel Osborne withstood lunchroom calamity while keeping doors closed and machines full.

Students, teachers bridge gap

As student Government size increased with the revamping of the Council, more students became aware of and involved in Notre Dame. Positions were divided as class representatives and officers handled class affairs while Student Council representatives and officers manipulated student government. The newly formed Student-Liasion Board, composed of the vice-presidents and one other member of each class, functioned as a link between the NDA School Board and the student body. Through Mrs. Ruth Stenger, students familiarized the Board with both typical situations and problems, including the value of independent study and activity period. Inter Club Council became distinct from Student Council with a separate constitution setting criteria for judging school clubs. The Board, re-elected each quarter, brought clearer understanding between administration and students.

Freshmen, Freshmen everywhere—175 strong

Astounding other classes by their size and unity, freshmen cautiously waited before selecting officers for the coming year. Pleasantly surprised by the new realms of high school life, frosh queried why's and how's of Algebra I. Clubs, assemblies, and lunch machines offered diversions from academic routines for the class of '75.

Winning first place in Homecoming competition boosted frosh morale in those first faltering autumn days. Freshmen, along with Bishop Barry, offered a perfect send off before the holidays with a Christmas dance and light show. Orange, yellow, and black clad cheerleaders encouraged Juvenesscent Juniors at the annual Powderpuff game. Ecology minded, freshmen sold non-phosphate soap for the dual purpose of boosting their treasury and supporting the anti-pollution movement. Class meetings held in B-wing corridor and competing for Miss Christmas Garland title composed a silent majority year for freshmen.

Swirling through rotating schedules, birthday cupcake parties, and hot lunches after figure control sessions in P.E., Sophomores found time for hours of academic studies. Glue, tape, and zillions of tacks held together the safari float which took second place at Homecoming. Sophomores produced a splash hit with their aquatic booth involving a wet Mr. Paul. Noisy debates at class meetings sometimes overlooked Student Council's new parliamentary procedure with "Forget it!" remarks. Although enthusiasm did not catch the $10 NFL paper drive prize, the girls made up for this selling stationery at Christmas. Having planned Christmas gifts of stationery for relatives, teachers, and Kris Kindls, saleswomen focused their thoughts on a gift for the Christ Child at Convocation. With courage, the sophomores sewed outfits for their "Sew Biz" fashion show. Teachers with sewing talents added a new touch as they modeled along with their students. After putting up with droopy hems, mismatched buttons, and reluctant male models. Sophomores were prepared for new challenges as Juniors.

Kicking off the year with demanding schedules, hours of homework, and strained nerves—juniors caught their breath in large gulps. Staggering prices of U.S. History books, and impossible algebraic equations became more realistic as juniors adjusted to the roles of upperclassmen. Fighting congestion in the halls of B-wing donating to paper drive, and eliminating big and little sisters tested junior endurance. Wild enthusiasm that erupted from juniors at Homecoming contributed to overall spirit.

After school and activity period practices kept Juvenscent Juniors in shape for the anticipated Powderpuff game. Spirit ran high as juniors faced the opposing seniors. Fips, hot cocoa, and Baron buttons raised money for frequent class projects. To the music of Your Song and Child of the Universe, juniors received valued class rings at a daytime assembly. In midyear, juniors molded plans for an April 8th prom at Port-O-Call.

Privileges challenge Seniors

"Ladies, start your engines" resounded over the PA December 6, signaling Juggernaut Seniors to echo a cheer for Powderpuff victory. Off-campus lunch, graduation announcement orders, and frequent class meetings brought the senior class together for their last year of plaid skirts and fire drills. Costumed as three-headed ghosts, goblins, and ghouls, seniors amused 220 children in the traditional Halloween party. Featuring live fortune-tellers and a spaghetti-coated black lighted spook house, the Halloween part netted $110. On November 16, cars headed for Seminole Park where each girl entertained a child from Immaculate Conception Day Care Center. Garbage cans filled with grape kool-aid quenched thirsts after 60 minutes of slides, swings, and merry-go-rounds. A septic tank served as Senior Homecoming float, accompanied with a banner lettered, "Put a tiger in your tank." Contributions from each senior to form a boutique earned $75 in the Auxiliary's Holly Day Bazaar. "Wall to wall grass instead of wall to wall trash" sloganned 12B's CAND project: Clean All Notre Dame. After semester exams and college applications, relieved seniors began countdown to May 26.

COMMUNITY

Communication provides us with an incentive for becoming involved.
The willingness to work readily within our community is only a fraction of the response we owe to the freedom of existence.
Through diligent endeavors fervent, vigorous, and unflinching, we strive for acceptance and self-esteem in our society.
Shared ideas, worthwhile fatigues,
and hard-earned accomplishments influence the desire of each person to give a percent of herself in order to make a whole.

One staff of 16 cannot truly accept the reward of their creation unless they recognize those who made their efforts possible.

Thank you . . .

. . . to Mr. Jerry Bass, Paragon representative for his sincerity and guidance.

. . . to the student body who supported our campaigns.

. . . to Sister Eileen and the faculty for cooperation especially when candids had to be retaken.

. . . to our typists especially Joan Carol, Sam, Michele, Debbie, and Carol.

. . . to our freshman apprentices Stephanie, Cyndi, Laura, and Jo Ann who amazed us with their overabundant "eagerness" to help.

. . . to our parents who put up with late night deadlines and supervised rummage sales.

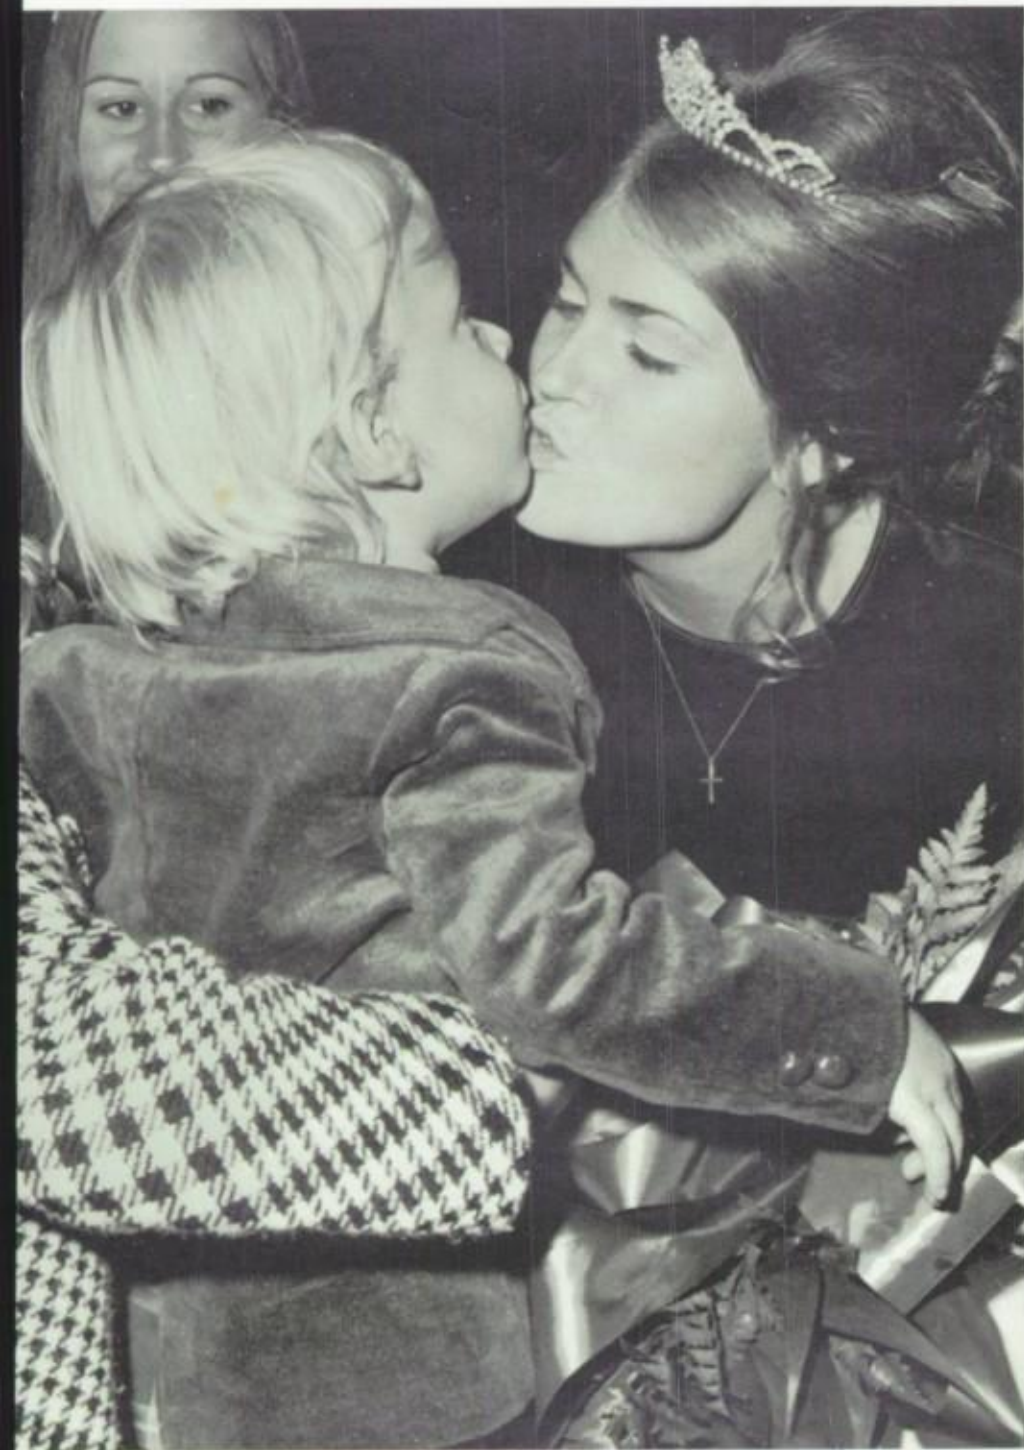

. . . to Sunken Gardens for their setting for Student Council pictures.

. . . to Bryn Alan Studios who took the time and patience with special effect and candid pictures.

. . . finally to SAM for her precious time, sense of humor, and incessant optimism.

Ann,

I never really got to know you in Mr. Ryan's religion class (thrilling wasn't it)! Thanks for talking to me so that I didn't fall asleep. I must say I learned a lot but not about religion.
I try to be good and have a fabulous summer!

Anne,
You are a great worker and a super person. Good luck next year on Nodama. I wish I could come back to work on the book with ya'll - but that's how it goes! Be good!

Love,
Mary! X

Epilogue

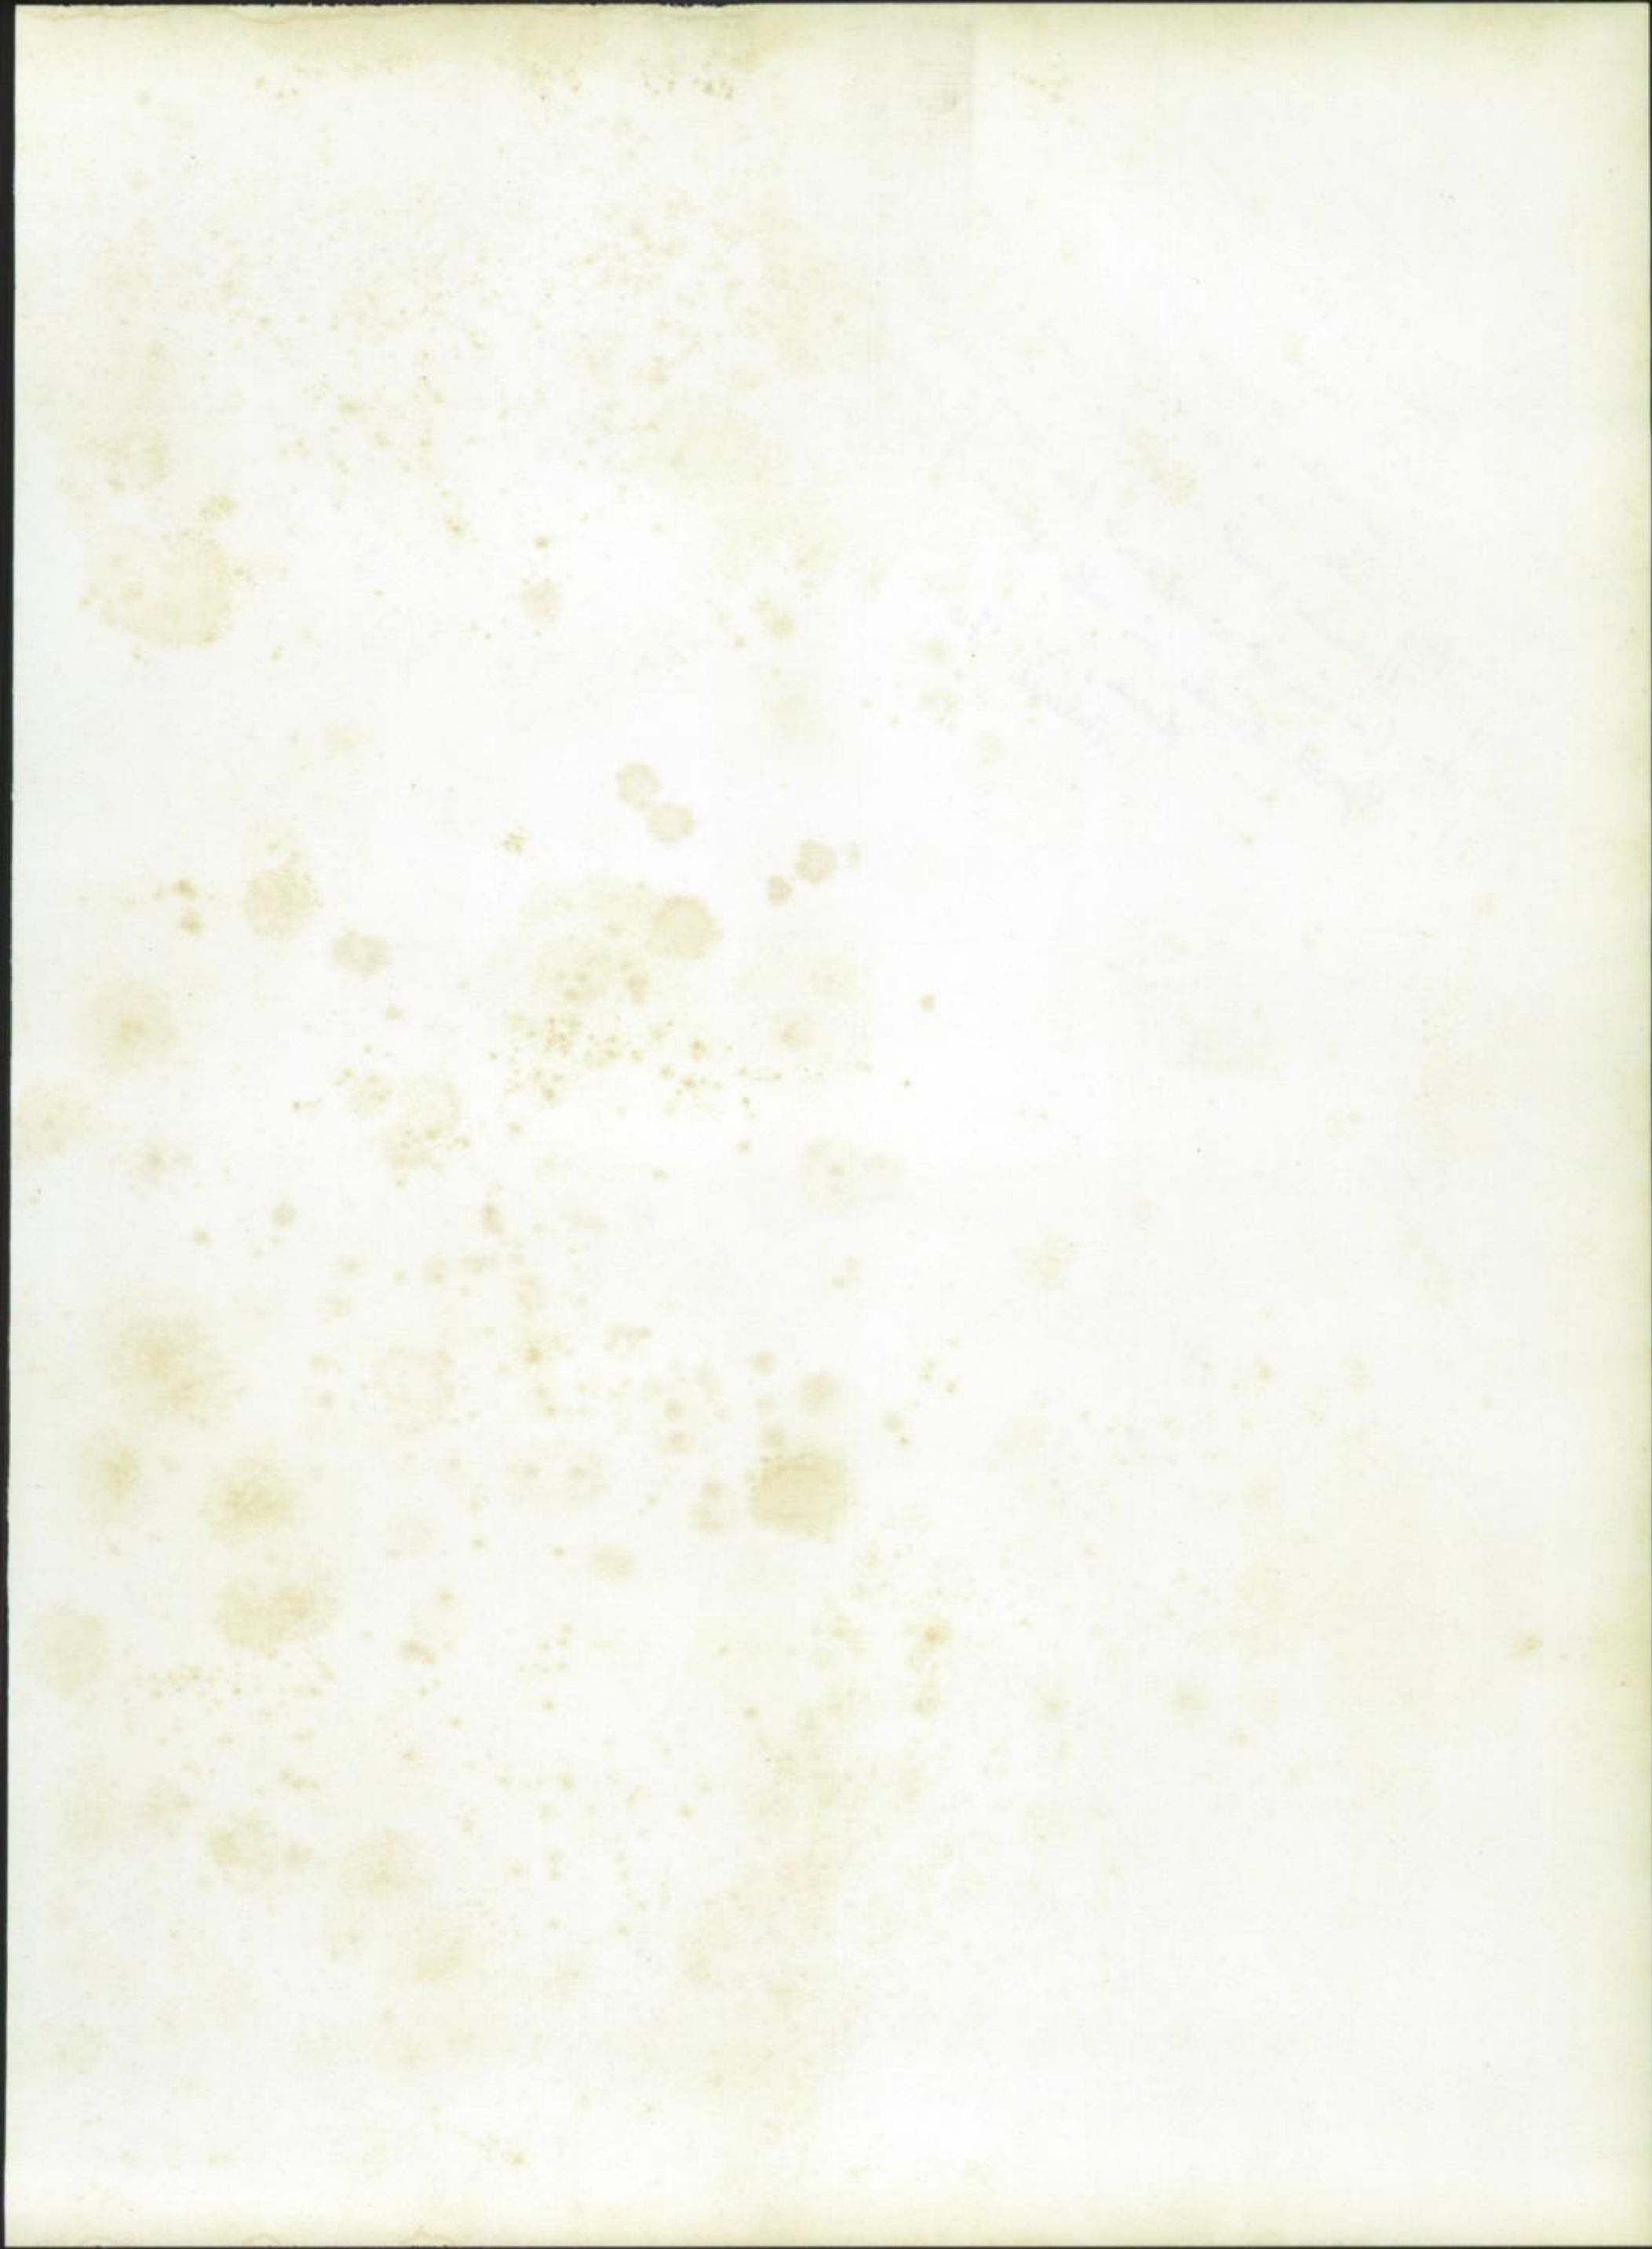

We walk along a path of memories and reminisce days gone forever. Thinking back to all those terribly important things we can't even recall. We remember unsolvable traffic jams, Don McLean's Bye Bye Miss American Pie, goodbye to big and little sisters, crowded assemblies, the frustrations of independent study, the male invasion, half hour lunch at McDonald's or on the grass, and IC picnics. Through the crowds, through the crying and laughter we look for permanence. We wake up and in a moment it's night. We enter high school and too soon it's over. In all of this we rush to catch our breath at some goal we never reach and still we find that our freedom has been left intact.

anne, I'm gonna be the first one to sign on this page! wow!
I'm really glad I got to know you in Religion class. you're really sweet and you've been a great friend! you're really one of the nicest people I've met at NDA and believe me I don't write that in everyone's yearbook - feel privileged! Thanks for all your advice but everything...
Good luck!

Love,
Nancy

Anne,
my Senior Year is finally over & am I happy! I insere I couldn't even take another week of Chemistry with that Coce hee. What a weirds, queer, unisome - yick!
It was a real experience and I must say fun having you across from me in Chem, doing stupid, wrong labs,
watching you handle equipment you'd go really far in any more labs. Oh yes, can't forget our little walk down to the Clinic. Be good + have fun next year being a big Senior

Dear
to me,
I had a lot of fun with you in English this year. It was great to have you as a classmate and a friend. Don't worry I am not time (at least not during the weekends) and I don't have to relax since I already am relaxed. I hope you won't forget Mrs. Duffy with her. Now, I want you to... saying. Have a great summer and don't do what I would do (since it wouldn't be considered as being rated & or GP??). Good Luck in all your future endeavors.

Anne,

Well another whole year has gone by and you and Ted are still together! (It's been a long time!)
you've come along wavy since A.V.O of "beach parties" and show & tell! It was a real experience having you sit across from me in H.R.!!
I'm sure you're really gonna miss
"Cora Ford" next year.
Just think no Chem either! (What a pity!)
Remember the time
we went to that movie and you left your lights on! What a dumb bat! And the time I ran over your garbage can pulling out of your drive way! It's been a fun year but I'm glad we have more. I'm sure to share a locker with "the slob!"

Anne,
Well, it's the end of the year - finally! - and I don't believe it. Too bad
we didn't have a class with Mr. Murphy!!
Well, have a good summer, and hang on to Ted!!! Love, Megan

Anne,
I never know what to say when somebody asks me to sign their yearbook but I think I'll think of something.
Well, this year has been fun in homeroom, bookkeeping, and victory. Congratulations on the year.
Book it's really nice and good luck next year on Nodama. Tell Dad to stop calling me ~~book~~ and to stop giving me
the bird during bookkeeping. Good Luck

Anne,
Well, 3 years down and 1 to go. This has been a Great Year. Have A Fun
Summer and Be Good.

Dear Anne,
It's been a great year with you as a friend. Never forget the "great" times we had in English with Mrs. Duffy. I hope I'll see you around this summer and do in the future. Good luck in whatever you'll Keep smiling.
Love,
Valerie

Anne,
It's been great having you in religion class.
We have a lot of ideas in common. Can't wait till we start to work on the next year book.
Have lots of fun this summer & be good. You're a real sweet person, one always with a smile.
See you next year
Mary.

Anne.

I feel thru this class I've gotten to know you better! Last year
I had you in algebra
but we never got to know one another really well.
Good luck in all you do!

Bye Bye
